The Great Templar Escape

By Billy Cook

Today the JOs put on a spectacular event for all of the conferees at LTC. The objective was to have your chapter save Jacques DeMolay from being burned at the stake. The members of the chapter were playing the role of arrested Templar Brothers. The event consisted of three parts in which the four chapters were timed. The fastest chapter was the winner and saved DeMolay. These three parts were the escape room, the cardboard raft building, and the scavenger hunt.

The escape room consisted of a chapter divided into two teams working together, but between two separate rooms. The goal was to escape the room before their fifteen minute time limit expired. The second event was held at the shallow water front. The goal was to build a raft using cardboard and duct tape. An escaped Templar then used the raft to transport himself across the shallow water front. Finally, the scavenger hunt consisted of finding four locations with riddles that helped the chapter find the next location. The chapter that rescued Jacques DeMolay, played by their Chapter Dad, first was the winner. The results were as follows, DeMoooooolay in first place, Shielded Brotherhood in second, Knights of LTC in third, and Holy Flame in fourth.

The Jurisdictional Officers did an excellent job of organizing and executing this event. It goes to show that creativity, hard work, and organization really do emerge out of leaders.

Food: The Greatest

By Jordan Odess

Two nights ago, we were given a surprise treat. It was an amazing sandwiches that the staff had laid out for us. The ingredients consisted of peanut butter, Fluff®, jelly, M&M's®, and Nutella™. We were allowed to make the most unique sandwich for ourselves. Also, the breads were great, especially the Canadian bread. It made for some pretty "bomb" sandwiches that I'm sure everybody had enjoyed...even the advisors!

Frogman: Fact or Fiction?

By Corwin Stauff

Yesterday, during the JO event, an amateur photographer captured what could be another photo of the elusive and mysterious Frogman. But could this picture be a hoax?

All reported sightings of Frogman have been at large gatherings of people, but the photo shows the Frogman nearly alone in the water. Also, the Frogman in this picture doesn't match the police sketch or the original photo. However, the police sketch itself doesn't match any existing photos or eyewitness testimonies.

Could the original photo itself be a hoax? Could Frogman be one giant fabrication? Are there perhaps multiple Frogmen? What about Frogwomen? We may never find out for sure.

A special cryptozoologist is reportedly headed up to New Durham, New Hampshire to investigate further, but be sure to report any additional sightings to the Fi-Daily-Tas staff.

Kickball with Arrowhead

By Trip Durham

"Kicking" off the day, today, a guest visited us and told us about an upcoming kickball game with Camp Arrowhead. I heard that a lot of DeMolays were excited to play kickball with the other guests at Lions Camp Pride. When we started the game, all four cabins were separated into two groups. One group being DeMooooooooooy and Shields of Brotherhood versus the Holy Flame and The Knights of LTC. As far as I could tell, everyone (DeMolay and Arrowhead) and a fantastic time trying to get as many people out as they could. While we played, we sang and danced to songs like "Macarena," "Dancing Queen," and much more. A wise DeMolay told me, "Have no mercy on the DeMolays!" I hope everyone had a great time with that fantastic game and a fantastic day.
